On behalf of the University of Cincinnati General Internal Medicine Department, we are excited to offer the 1st Annual: University of Cincinnati General Internal Medicine Conference September 2017: Updates Every General Practitioner Needs to Know on Saturday, September 9th, 2017. The conference will be held from 7:30-3:00 pm at the Manor House in Cincinnati.

This is a CME conference that is designed using proven educational principles that maximize learning and retention. This conference will use evidence-based adult learning principles to engage learners and promote long-term knowledge retention. This one-day conference will highlight advances in topics such as diabetes, hypertension, pain management, hyperlipidemia, novel anticoagulants, perioperative risk, as well as an evidence based decision making to reduce waste and increase value. Short, didactic sessions, case based learning, small group discussion will all be utilized to provide an exciting exchange of ideas among learner! In the process, attendees will experience best practices for knowledge acquisition and retention. Our plan is to hold this conference on an annual basis, so we can provide participants each year with a timely update of practice changes and impactful articles in the past year's peer-reviewed medical literature.

Course content is based on a needs assessment survey of inpatient and outpatient physicians. The program is being publicized to academic and community physicians (including house staff), nurse practitioners, and physician assistants specializing in internal medicine, hospital medicine, and family medicine in Southwest Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky.

This live CME event will provide attendees 5.75 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ through the University of Cincinnati. The University of Cincinnati is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education.

If you have any questions regarding the course, please contact the administrative course contact, Chandra Dubose at duboseca@ucmail.uc.edu or 513-558-7581.

Sincerely,

Updates in General Internal Medicine Conference Committee
